Gen. Scott's Report.
"I now begin to extend the period of relief before naturalization and a TOTAL REPEAL of ALL ACTS OF CONGRESS ON THE SUBJECT. My mind inclines TO THE LATTER."—Winfield Scott.

MONDAY, : : : : JULY 19, 1852.

The editor of the Journal makes an elaborate and ingenious effort to release his party from the crushing weight of its own melancholy history. He can't deny the past; it is too plain—Whig doctrines, whig philosophy, whig creeds, and whig predictions are all gone among the wretched number of the past. There is not a trace of it in the policy of the country, and all the world sees that that was not.

But the editor says Madison signed a bank bill, and the democrats of his day voted for it; that the democrats were called for protection; thus the independent treasury has only succeeded well because its provisions have been disregarded.

Now all this does not alter the case. The editor knows what the issues have been between the two great parties of the country. What individuals did long ago, or lately, is not to the point—the truth remains just as we left it. All that the whigs have staked their fortunes upon for the last twenty years is gone, and gone for ever. To be sure, we have some mutterings occasionally about protection, but nobody heeds it. We have a good deal of demagoguery about rivers and harbors, merely to get votes in particular localities, but they are but rumbles of whig thunder after the cloud has passed. The one-man power, the anti-masonry, the nativism that the whigs took under their charge years ago, they are now getting ashamed of. The truth is, whigry is defunct. Nothing but the hull of the party remains.

They have been trying to restitute it up in military style, and freight it with gas and gunpowder, but it is only old cast, worn out; and the crew is in a state of mutiny. What have the whigs done? is a question that a whig feels rather ashamed to answer. Fillmore supported the compromise, but the whigs did not elect him President; and they set him aside because he did support the compromise. This is the plain truth, which everybody knows. He is proscribed for the little good he did, which would have been better done if the whigs had no President, and not a member in Congress.

The editor of the Journal thinks the annexation of Texas had well nigh ruined the country. The whigs made trouble about it. They opposed it North because Texas was slave territory, and seemed resolved on mischief; and they got some professed democrats to help them; but the great deed was done, and the country was not ruined; and but for whigs, little difficulty would have been encountered. They told Mexico constantly how she was wronged. They supported her cause during the whole contest. They got up the excitement about free-soil in the North; so said Daniel Webster in his Abington speech, and he told the truth.

The editor finally professes yet to believe that the annexation of Texas was an injury, and he still deprecates it. No doubt some of the old organic remains of the federal party still mount upon the acquisition of Louisiana. Our neighbor is only one of the old fog whigs who can't yet see what is manifest to the rest of mankind. The world can't wait on him or on such as he is. It will move ahead and drag him along at the caudal extremity of things, scolding and grumbling at the uprooted word. Our neighbor need not try to falsify history, or get away from it. The contrary recollects whig editorials, whig speeches, whig doctries, &c., of a few years past. They don't see the same views and objects now; they are all gone—almost all. The party is out of capital, and it is falling to pieces. The signs of dissolution thicken upon it.

Mr. Greer, editor of the Tribune down here at New Albany, takes up the cudgels for General Scott's civil life, and lets off thus:

Gen. Scott has always sustained the reputation of being a close and laborious student, and few of his profession, we apprehend, have studied men and books to better advantage. Talk about his having no civil life! Out upon the arrant humbug that could give vitality to such a thought.

If General Scott has been a laborious student, then his case is more hopeless than ever. If he has studied hard, and improved no more in sixty or seventy years, there is precious little to be expected hereafter. Mr. Greer ought not to use the word humbug; it reminds everybody of General Scott's civil life, his nomination for the presidency, &c.

We are reminded of Scott's exploits away up yonder in Maine, where he was sent to stop a border war which stopped itself; and now they want to compliment Scott for stopping it. After General Scott had returned from that perilous and bloody expedition, some of his friends, who had an eye on him for President, no doubt, got up a dinner in honor of him. We are told Marx was there, and perhaps he was; for we don't see why he should object to a good dinner any more than any one else, and it is said the following toast, among others equally gassy, was drunk, with divers bottles of champagne:

Winfield Scott! Not less the scholar than the soldier, whose pen and sword have been wielded with equal skill in the defense of his country.

His pen and sword wielded with equal skill! only think of it! Scott's sword means something, but his pen never was anything but a goose-quill.

This Maine excursion is General Scott's civil life, according to Mr. Greer.

A WHIG ELECTOR FOR PIERCE AND KING.—William S. Parham, Esq., a whig candidate for elector for the district in which General Taylor resided, and recently the leading member of his party in the Legislature of Louisiana, declines to support Scott, and has announced his determination to go for Pierce and King. The New Orleans Delta, a neutral paper, from which we take the fact, say "he intends to enter into the canvass warmly for the democratic ticket." He comes over on account of the nomination of Scott. The Delta adds: "Our letters from the interior of the State where the news of General Scott's nomination has penetrated, indicate dissatisfaction, and convey the opinion that the planting interest will find in opposition to him."

The subscriptions of stock to the Covington and Louisville railroad, have greatly increased in the past few days.

Who Knows?

The true phenomenon of Gen. Scott is quite a moot question. We believe he writes his name "Winfield," but others who profess to be well informed on the subject, insist that the true spelling is Wingfield. At a recent political meeting in Richmond, in the vicinity of Scott's place of nativity, it was stated by a gentleman who professed intimacy with him from boyhood, that the true spelling was Wingfield. It is well known that the Virginians are proverbial for the interest they take in genealogical matters, and are, therefore, most excellent authority in all that pertains to family history, however minute. We incline to think, therefore, that this gentle- man, right, and that somehow the name is corrupted. Now, is important to know how this occurred. When, for what reason, and by what authority was the change made? Was it made by the arbitrary will of the General, or, as usual, by legislative authority?

Roman history tells us how, and for what reason the prefix of Augustus was annexed to the name of the Caesars, and we insist that American history should not be silent in reference to this important fact in the case of our eminent citizen.

Gen. Scott's political partisans conceive there is much significance in the name of Winfield. Perhaps this may furnish a clue to the solution of the question. The General may have thought that was much virtue in a name, and this may account for the change from the original orthography.

We trust our good neighbors of the Journal will hasten to enlighten the public by an authentic exposition of the facts and philosophy of the case.

MARYLAND WHIGS FOR PIERCE AND KING.—Col. A. G. E. of Carroll county, whig elector four years ago; C. F. Mayer, Esq., of Baltimore; Col. T. M. McKay, candidate for Congress three years ago; Messrs. Brewer, Deveaux, and Semmes, of Allegheny county, and others, have renounced whigry and will support Pierce and King.

WHY DON'T GEN. SCOTT RESIGN?—This question is repeatedly asked, but the federal press is unable to reply. Graham has resigned. Scott, however, exhibits his love of office by holding on, deeming the certainty of a salary of ten thousand dollars a year of great value in the uncertainty of twenty-five thousand. Why don't Scott resign, is then no longer a problem; because he knows he will be defeated.—Balt. Argus.

"GRIN AND BE IT!"—There is no cause for lamenting at the loss of Toombs and Stephens, or any number of men like them. They have been a moth and a curse to the party on which they have inflicted their pretended membership.—New London Chronicle.

The tone of the whig press in reference to the removal of the southern whip from the hands of Congress to General Scott remains very strong. The Irishman and his rabbit. "Ouch darlin' and how I ate ye!" Is it boiled, broiled, or roasted? Fair, is good ye are, cook'd any way?" "Be off wid ye, ye'll be hanged for that you're not burthen enough in the village to grease your d---up carcass!" and you good for nothing any how?" Probably Messrs. Toombs and Stephens find their relief in the rabbit's consolation, who thanked his stars he had got rid of distasteful company.

New Haven Register.

FOR TUT.—The Hartford Courant asks of the Hartford times:

Will the Times give us some of the wise opinions on State affairs that its candidate has uttered?

The Times makes the following proposition in reply: We will publish three speeches of Frank Pierce—good sound speeches, too, if the Courant will copy them into its columns. They shall be on State affairs.

2. If the Courant, after publishing these speeches, will publish three of Gen. Scott's speeches ("on State affairs,") we will copy them into its columns.

AN APOLOGY.

Our subscribers to the Daily Democrat whose papers are sent through the early mail and by the railroads were disappointed on Saturday, on account of an accident in the office. We see all right now and hope such delay will not again occur.

A new Concert Hall is being erected in New Albany.

A city hospital is to be established at Madison.

Good Joke.—The New Richmond Age man says to his readers that he wants money!

We are indebted to the Cornelia for late St. Louis papers.

See advertisement of farm for sale in Clark county, Ind.

Tropical fruits have become quite abundant in our city during the past few days.

The Riflemen have postponed their visit to Cincinnati until next month.

The Navy Department has advertised for thirty-six thousand gallons of whisky.

The mail boats encounter considerable difficulty in getting over Rising Sun bar.

Our wharf has been almost deserted by boats during the past week. Dull times these.

The Madison and Cincinnati packets will draw off in a few days. The Express will take the place of the Wisconsin.

Some oats were lately produced in Adams county, Penn., which measured four feet nine and a quarter inches in height.

Over five thousand dollars per month are now paid to the operatives in and about the cotton mill at Cannelton, Ind.

Many of our citizens are away at the different "watering places"—enjoying the cool shade and eating big dinners.

Affred Burnett has sold his right to the Clay mediation in Kentucky, to Mr. F. V. Bacon, of Covington.

Licking river is now crowded with large steamers, which have laid up for repair and a fresh coat of paint.

The cholera has broken out again, some distance back on the Covington and Lexington railroad.

The Tuscarora, which has been aground at Hat Island in the Mississippi for some time, is in a fair way of getting off.

The principal portion of the travel to St. Louis, is via river and railroad from Madison.

Several passengers on the Keokuk and Gen. Pike, were robbed at St. Louis on last Tuesday.

The Victoria Serenaders, is the name of a band of minstrels recently organized in this city.

The Toledo Blade (whig) admits that Scott wrote the letter against foreigners in 1841, but says it has changed? Does any one think he would have changed if the Native American party had become popular?

The Burmese war in India is likely to be marked by great ferocity. The Governor of Rangoon has offered fifty rupees for the head of every British white soldier, and thirty for the head of every black one.

FAST RUNNING.—The steamer Northern Indian, Capt. Wagstaff, made the trip from Cleveland, and back, (240 miles,) on Thursday last, in the unprecedented space of ten hours, including a detour of one hour and six minutes at the latter place. The Foster City thinks this is the greatest fast ever accomplished in steamboat navigation.

POLITICAL PARTIES.—Four political parties are now in the field: the democrats with Piero, the whigs with Scott, the natives with Webster, and the free soilers with Hale, whose nomination by the Massachusetts free soilers will probably be concurred in by the National convention at Pittsburgh, next August.

PLANK ROAD ON THE Isthmus.—An association is being formed in London, England, for the purpose of constructing a plank road across the Province of Chiqui, in New Grenada. The length of the road will be about fifty miles. The capital of the company will be about £200,000 in 40,000 shares of £5 each.

STEAMSHIP DIAMOND arrived at Erie on Tuesday morning, with the steamer Buckeye State in tow, in a collapsed condition, one of the keys under the piston head having worked outside the cylinder. It will take but a short time to repair, probably two days.

A little son of Mr. John Morris, of Madison, Ind., died suddenly on Monday night. When the family retired to rest for the night, the child to all appearances was in good health, but when its mother went to lift it up next morning, it was a corpse. Down its back, from its neck to its feet, and one ear, were perfectly blue.

HAIL STORM.—We understand that a severe hail storm passed over the southern part of Jefferson county, on Friday evening, destroying the corn and fruit to a great extent. Hail stones weighing over three ounces were picked up the next morning.

A combination of the coal dealers of Cincinnati is about to be formed, "for the protection of the trade." In consequence of this step, coal has advanced to 14 cents per bushel. It is claimed that, taking the year through, the interests of the consumers will not be injured.

CROPS ON THE ILLINOIS.—Boats from that river state that the wheat crop is nearly harvested, and was never known to be larger or of better quality. Such is the general report from all sections of the country. These accounts are particularly gratifying to river men, as they are thereby assured of plenty of business another season.

QUEEN VICTORIA AND THE MAINE LIQUOR LAW. Queen Victoria is opposed to the principles of the Maine liquor law. The Montreal Courier states that she has disapproved the liquor law passed by the New Brunswick legislature, on the Maine pattern, on the ground that its provisions are a violation of the liberty of the subject. Having the royal sanction, we suppose her subjects may now consider it their loyal duty to get royally drunk.

The Green river packets, Logan and Kentucky, will withdraw from that trade next week. During the last season, they have brought a large amount of tobacco to this market from the Green river counties; and now that they are compelled to lay by on account of low water, the tobacco will have to be transported by wagons.

They Come! They Come!

Within the last four weeks we have added to our daily list near four hundred more permanent daily subscribers. We announce this in no boasting spirit, but simply to inform the merchants of Louisville, and the public generally, that they may avail themselves of the wide and rapidly increasing facilities our column presents for spreading their wants before the people in the city and country around in almost every direction where mail facilities can reach.

JONATHAN SLICK IN LOUISVILLE,
NO. 6.

Jonathan starts out peddling—Goes to Lagrange—the wrong room, &c., &c.

Messrs. Editors: I expect you are wondering what on earth has become o' me, since I hain't writ you a letter for so long, and I guess I'll have to tell you all about it. You see I got mighty tired stayin' in one place so long, so what should I do but pack up a hal lot of brass watches and pewter breastpins, and one thing another, till I thought I had enough, and off I put down south a paddin'. Now, I knowed gin ain't looked upon as an honorable business; but still, when a feller wants to travel a little, what's better than to peddle as you go, and make your livin', instead of spendin' your money.

Well, I jumped aboard the car, and whee, get out! The darned things ran so fast that they wen't back until it now looks like a total failure; at any rate, the prospect is decidedly gloomy.

In the first place, the crop was cut short, owing to the scarcity of plants; and since the tobacco was planted, the dryness of the weather has kept it back until it now looks like a total failure; at any rate, the prospect is decidedly gloomy.

With the want of plants, and the want of rain, the tobacco is very little larger now than it was when planted; and if the season is not very favorable from this time forward, it must be a failure in the country mentioned. It is not uncommon for a large portion of this crop to be in the top at this time; and if, as I said before, the balance of the season is not very favorable, it is doomed to be caught by the frost.

Respectfully yours, &c., J. H. J.

THE wife of Mr. Bartlett, and two children, residing on upper Sixth street, New Albany, had a very narrow escape from death or severe injury, on Thursday night. They had retired to rest, leaving a candle burning on the mantel. By some means the flames communicated to the mosquito bar of one of the beds in the room, and in an instant the bars on two beds and a lounge were in a blaze. Mrs. B. with great presence of mind jumped from the bed and placed her children out of danger, though in so doing, her arms were severely burned. The flames were checked before they got much progress.

APERATIF IN SOMERSET.—We learn that a difficulty occurred in Somerset, Ky., on Wednesday last, between James W. Griffin of the Central House, Danville, and George F. Sartain, of the former place, in which Mr. Griffin was instantly killed by a pistol ball, Sartain, and a man named Givens who participated in the affray, were arrested.

SALUTE IN NEW ALBANY. A man by the name of John H. Bryan, a tailor or trade, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a shoe knife, on Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock, in New Albany.

Disappointment in love matters, we learn induced him to commit the rash act.

ACCIDENT.—A member of the Mechanic Fire company No. 1, named Benjamin Kinsey, was severely injured on Saturday evening by being struck by the tongue of the engine.

A little son of Mr. John Morris, of Madison, Ind., died suddenly on Monday night. When the family retired to rest for the night, the child to all appearances was in good health, but when its mother went to lift it up next morning, it was a corpse. Down its back, from its neck to its feet, and one ear, were perfectly blue.

HAIL STORM.—We understand that a severe hail storm passed over the southern part of Jefferson county, on Friday evening, destroying the corn and fruit to a great extent. Hail stones weighing over three ounces were picked up the next morning.

A combination of the coal dealers of Cincinnati is about to be formed, "for the protection of the trade." In consequence of this step, coal has advanced to 14 cents per bushel. It is claimed that, taking the year through, the interests of the consumers will not be injured.

EXTRAORDINARY MORAL COURAGE.—The Orange, Alleghany county Republican Era, instances a remarkable exhibition of this trait:

"We heard a whig the other day, openly and boldly, without any apparent mental reservation, say that he intended to vote for Scott! As he is the first and only one who has manifested a sufficient amount of moral courage to announce his determination to perpetrate such an act, we have thought it worth putting on record." Is there another such a person?

ELOPMENT.—The following is from the St. Louis Union of Wednesday last:

The officers of the steamer Express state that a man came on board the boat at New Albany, late at night, on the 11th inst., in company with a lady, and registered Mr. and Mrs. Davis for the way to this city, when called on for his private man. Davis declared that he had been robbed of $200 in cash, and his carpet-bag (the only baggage he had) cut open. Not believing his story about the robbery, the money, the officers and passengers determined to "try" him. Accordingly, $225 in bills, such as Davis said he had lost, was placed in the hands of a passenger, and a search proposed and carried out.

When this money was found, Davis betrayed some surprise, but claimed it finally. It is notable, however, to identify him. He acknowledged shortly after that he had only three dollars when he came on board, and that the cutting open of his carpet-bag was a ruse. When the boat arrived here he was arrested by the police, who had received a dispatch from New Albany, stating that his name was John Green Morton. Greenwood was lodged in the jailhouse, and a newspaper paragraph found in his pocket-book, which gave an account of the conviction of two men for robbing Mr. John Green Morton. The lady at the Virginia Hotel, before leaving the Express, the passengers made up a sum of money to enable her to return to New Albany.

PUBLIC INVITATION. Our fellow-citizens are respectfully invited to participate with us in a public expression of the great loss our beloved country has sustained in the death of her favorite son, the hon. Henry CLAY.

There will be a procession in Harrodsburg, on Saturday, July 21st, composed of the Masonic Fraternal Order, the Knights of Pythias, the Sons of Temperance, and the Young Men's Christian Association, to proceed to the beautiful grounds of the Harrodsburg Springs, where an oration will be pronounced by the Rev. S. Robinson, of Frankfort, Kentucky, on the Life, Character, and Services of one whom Kastorius, with heart-felt sorrow mourns, and one who will ever be in the memory of her patriotic son.

W. M. THOMPSON, T. P. MOORE, J. L. SMITH, W. C. MORSELEY, and C. A. FATTERSON, Committees.

NEW POLKA. A new polka, called "Adams & Co.'s Express Polka," has just been published.
